attracted a fair attendance to the Gravesend track yesterday afternoon. The track was not fast, as had not dried after the heavy rain. There was Her dust on the surface, but it was moist and holding underneath.

Many persons who are not versed in racing and the persons who bet their money on the favorites other questions that are unanswerable. It is enough other questions that are unanswerable. It is enough to drive a man to drink or riding a bicycle to attend the races with an average business man, and to attempt to answer his simple questions. If the pattern to a second of the pattern of vertex average are really the talent.

HOW THE WISE MEN FARED.

Here is the narrative of how "the talent" fared third. yesterday. In the first race there was a varied assortment to select from, but "the talent" to a man were confident that Lo Bengula would easily defeat the job lot of maidens opposed to him, and cordingly bet their money as if the other conpaddock. So confident were "the talent" that they bet their money without looking at their cards, as Matabele horse was considered an ace in a of deuces. The result was that they were of deuces. The result was that they were ominiously beaten by an extremely ordinary sh. The excuse was that McClain was not ong enough to ride Lo Bengula, but said: "Wait Sims rides and then get even." I he second race "the talent," who heartily dedogs, bet on the Kennel at odds on, and would listen to anything else as having a chance in race. At the finish Phoebus cast his shadow on Kennel, who was chased in by the dogs. Execkennel got his head down when Griffin went the whin. I the third race "the talent" were glorified, as a the third race to 2 on in the betting, won frace. Yo Tambien and his other opponents as peculiarly unfortunate in drawing handicap being peculiarly unfortunate in drawing handicap numbers.

The fourth race was far above levity, and was truly a fine exhibition of what a really first-class racehorse is capable of doing when asked. Domino added to the brilliant lustre of his career in defeating Stonenell and Lissak. From the start the peerless Domino held his opponents safe. The first eighth of a mile was run in thirteen seconds and the next in eleven and z quarter seconds—a pace that caused Lissak, game youngster that he is, to back up. Stonenell attempted to race the champion in the stretch, but could never reach him, and he won easily by a length. After the race "the talent" put on their palos and strode about the grounds with their heads in the air and loudly proclaimed: "We are the wise men who bet on Domino." Everybody at the track believed Domino would win, but did not care to bet the odds of 3 to 1 on.

In the fifth race the talent said: "Figaro is a 10 to 1 on shot." After they placed their money with the bookmakers they congratulated one another, as the bookmakers permitted them to bet 10 to win $5. They jumped on Galliee with great glee. S. W. Street, who is sometimes called "Doctor," launched all of his shekels on Galliee, as all the Jonahs of the "dope" and "the talent" were thrown overboard on the last voyage at Sheepshead Bay. Relieved of an undesirable deckload, the voyage was quickly made under a Reiff the entire distance, with Hyderabad and Frig on his lee and Figaro far astern.

give the subject its attention at the earliest opportunity. The most stringent rules should be made in regard to apprentices.

Domino's brilliant performance dazed some of the wiseacres who have croaked for weeks about his class. He proved conclusively to men who have seen Isinglass and Ladas race that he was the equal of the former and vastly superior to the latter as a racehorse. It is possible that Domino will measure strides with the English cracks next year.

Everybody condemns Yo Tambien and rates her as a moderate performer that properly placed might win selling races. The handicapper, however, continues to pile up the weight on the Western horses and to underrate the weight-carrying ability of the Eastern racers. Canada is also underrated, as light imposts are invariably placed on the horses from the land of the "ringer" and "cinches." Defeat means weight on for the Westand weight off for the guileless Canadians and some of the immaculate stables "clus to hum," as one of the Western owners put it. Racing on the Jockey Club tracks has greatly enhanced racing in the eyes of the public, and the sport is improving in quality, but for all that great care should be taken with the handicaps and the adjustments of the weights.

In the sixth race the remnant of "the talent"

In the sixth race the remnant of "the talent" who escaped the waters of Galilee by wearing life-preservers in the shape of rolls of currency were wary and not as anxious to bet as in the previous races. There was a luil in the storm, but soon the rustle of Michael F. Duyer's commission was heard, and Flying Dutchman, with Sims to guide him through space, was the Pegasus to which they turned without a dissenting voice. Flying Dutchman was sure to win, but to get even "the talent" determined to "whipsaw the race, to use their own determined to "whipsaw the race, to use their own talented expression. A message from the Touares of Darkest New-Jersey to one of the leaders of talent said that sabilia was as gure a thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure a thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent said that sabilia was as gure at thing for talent and the result that was required was to go in and sacrifice the victims. "The talent" were in and were sacrificed as a Touares connoisseur clipped the wings of the Flying Dutchman and literally devoured the leader of "the talent" decimated forces and held a number of his staff for ranson.

In the eighth attempt "the talent" were reduced to a broken, disorganized force, its individual members who escaped annihilation engaging in a species of guerilla warfare, as feeble attacks were made on Little Billy, Adelbert, Bel Demonio and Miss Dixle. The larger part of their ammunition was wasted on Adelbert, who was defeated by Little Billy by a neck on the post. A leading bookmaker Billy by a neck on the post. A leading bookmaker Billy by a reck on the post. A leading bookmaker defined "the talent" as men who would buy gold bricks or green-goods if it were not for the races. They are called "the talent" by courtesy, as it would offend them to call them "guys," "Jays," "suckers" or any of the pet names used by witnesses before the Lexow Committee.

Matthew Byrnes and many other trainers complain of the scarcity of jockeys. When a trainer begins to give an apprentice mounts and to teach him to ride races, as a rule, he loses a good exercising boy, as the boy's guardians take him away from the stable should he win a race or give promise of becoming a good jockey. The Jocket Cub should give the subject its attention at the earliest opportunity. The most stringent rules should be made in regard to apprentices.

NEW-YORK STATE TROTTING MEN BEGIN THEIR MEETING.

MOUNTAIN MAID WINS IN THE 3:00 CLASS-KING DARLINGTON, THE BAY STALLION,

The tenth annual meeting of the New-York State Association of Trotting Horse Breeders opened at association has arranged an elaborate programme for the four days' meeting, and with large fields of high-class horses in each day's contests they should secure the support of metropolitan horse slow-classed horses, one of them for colts, devel oped some attractive sport, with, in some in was in good condition, and the time made, especially in the 3:00 class, was excellent. The judge resterday were J. L. McCarthy, starter; Alexander Newburger, J. D. Walton and George Kahler. with Prince S., the best liked of the lot, selling at $29, while the balance of the field sold for $50. Mountain Maid, however, was the winner, Prince

The two-year-old race had seven starters, with Whalebone, the good California colt, favorite over the field, at $25 to $9. In the first heat the favorite escaped being distanced along with the rest driver of McLane pulled up in the stretch so as allow the field to get in, but even though he pulled down almost to a walk, Whalebone was the only one near enough to beat the flag as the winner went under the wire.

The good-intentioned act of McLane's driver was expensive to him in the end, as in the next two heats Whalebone had no difficulty in beating McLane, who proved unsteady. Had he gone on about his business and distanced the field, as he undoubtedly could have done, the full purse would have gone to him, whereas done, the full purse would have gone to him, whereas he had to be content with second money, while Whalebone took first, third and fourth.

In the 228 class the favorite, Wilkesmont, had it all his own way, winning in straight heats and taking a new record of 220½ in the second heat. Captain Macey was the contending horse in every heat, and really trotted a more meritorious race, Wilkesmont making frequent handy skips, which materially bettered his chances.

King Darlington, the bay stallon, by King Wilkes, dam Marguerite by Kentucky Prince, owned by A. B. Darling, of this city, died at the trace early yesterday morning. He was taken sick after his race last Friday, which was won by Major S. T. Dickinson's Cocoon. In the first heat, by an accident, King Darlington's sulky was upset, his driver was thrown out and the horse ran away. Afterward he was the contending horse throughout the race, winning one heat and taking a record of 216, and losing the concluding heat to Cocoon by only a head. He was valued at $20,000 by his owner, and was looked upon by good judges as one of the most promising stallions in this yelenty. A cold which he contracted on 300 CLASS TROTTING PURSE $600

PAUL, 2:00%, DISQUALIFIED IN THE 2:10 PACE AT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Sept. II.—The second day's Grand Circuit races at the Philadelphia Driving Park were more interesting than those of yesterday. It took six heats to decide the 2:10 page. Major Wonder winheats. Paul (200%), the chestnut gelding by Bald Hornet, was not permitted to start in this race, be-cause his original entry had not been received. The protest was made by the owners of Vitello and Frima Donna when the horses were ready to score for the first heat, and the judges, after a long con sultation, declared Paul to be ineligible. H. W. Smith, of Haverbill, Mass., the owner of Paul, says he mailed the entry for his horse from Roston last tion, although subsequent entrance remittances were received. Paul was a hot favorite, selling in the pools for $10, against $29 for Guinette, $17 for Prima Donna, $8 for Vitello and $11 for the field-Lucille H.

A HEAVY LOSS FOR THE PALO ALTO STABLES.

The Palo Alto Stud has met a great loss in the death of the noted stallion Whips, 2:27%, by Elec-tioneer, out of thoroughbred Lizzle Whips, by Enorses doller, out of thoroughbred Lizzle Whips, by Enquirer. Among the get of this horse which have distinguished themselves by their splendlid campaigning qualities in the present season, are Azote, 23092, and Cobwebs, 232, both of which have won

2:39½, and Cobwebs, 2:12, both of which have won an unusual number of races in the large meetings of the present season.

This horse was a favorite with Senator Stanford, and next to the stallion Palo Alto, 2:35½, also out of a thoroughbred mare, he valued him above any of the sons of Electioneer, with the possible exception of Azmoor. The superior campaigning qualities of these members of the Electioneer family which carry thoroughbred blood, seem to confirm his estimate of the value of that element in trotting pedigrees. The three-year-old filly Expressive, whose campaign this year has perhaps surpassed that of any three-year-old yet produced, is an instance of its efficacy.

players are happy thereat. Two games from the Spiders is all that could be reasonably expected by Gotham's cranks. The Glants have done great work against the Clevelands this year, having con nine of the twelve games played. The double bill brought out a crowd of fair proportions, but the attendance was considerably affected by the trotting races which began to-day. The visitors never had a chance to win the first game. "Farmer Cy" Young was the Young of old, and he had the Giants standing on their heads, figuratively speaking. On the other hand, Meekin was an easy mark for the Spiders. They made seven singles and a three-bagger in three innings, which, with two bases on balls and errors by Ward and Fuller, gave them six runs. Manager Ward sensibly took

The Cievalana Sovie in displayed inning of the second game on wild throws by Ward and Farrell and Burkett's single to centre. The Giants started to do business in the fourthining. After McAleer had made a fine catch of Ward's long drive Van Haltren got a base on balls. Fuller singled to centre, Van Haltren being held on second by McAleer's quick work. Farrell hit to McGarr, who threw Fuller out at second, but Childs threw wildly to first, and "the Duke" was safe. Tebeau hoisted the ball over O'Connor's head in an attempt to keep Van Haltren on third, and so "Van" crossed the plate. Meekin slammed the ball safely to centre, and Farrell praned home. Meekin reaching second on the throw to the plate. Burke hit a slow one to McGarr and was safe. An instant later he landed on second on a wild pitch. Tiernan walked to first, and the bases were filled. Davis nearly knocked Cuppy down with a terrific grounder, and Meekin scored. Then Doyle put a beauty into centre field, sending Burke and Tiernan home. Ward lined out another single to centre. Doyle tried to reach third, and did better than he expected, as McAleer's throw went into the bleachers, allowing the runner to cross the plate. Ward reaching third in the mean time. Van Haltren ended the inning by going out at first. This practically settled the contest. The Giants will leave for St. Louis at 3 a. m. to-morrow in a special parlor car. Score:

Every evidence points to the fact that football will be the popular outdoor sport this winter, and, as many professional football players will be engaged in the exhibitanting pastime, no doubt the game will find the exhilarating pastime, no doubt the game will find increased favor in the eyes of all lovers of athletic sport. There is probably no place in the vicinity of New-York that would be more suited to the game of football than would the arena that has been used all summer for Buffalo Bill's Wild West at Ambrose Park, in South Brooklyn. The size of the arena would make it almost an ideal football ground, while the sheltered grandstand would add much to the comfort of spectators of the game, and it would seem a wise move if the officers of the football leagues would turn their eyes to the Wild West arens before making final arrangements. The accessibility to Ambrose Park from all portions of New-York and Brooklyn has been so strongly impressed upon the minds of the public during the stay of Buffalo Bill that there can be no doubt of its extreme availability as a football field. As the Wild West Show closes its season about the time the football games begin, consultation with the managers of the Wild West would seem to be in order.
